The Memorial University of Newfoundland Chamber Choir membership is comprised of students, faculty and the community at large. First formed in 1975, the choir has played a key role in the development of choral music in the community through frequent concerts and clinics at the School of Music and at various other venues throughout the province. In addition to this, the choir has represented Newfoundland and Memorial University serving as able ambassadors at various tours in Canada and abroad.

The MUN Chamber Choir also aids in the function of recruitment with regular tours of the province. The choir is not mutually exclusive for music students, but welcomes participation by singers from all disciplines.

Douglas Dunsmore has enjoyed his career as high school music teacher, internship co-ordinator, and university professor/supervisor, and has served as clinician/adjudicator extensively throughout Canada and the United States. Appearances as conductor/clinician in 2002 include the CBC Radio/Television Easter Sunrise Special from St. John's, David Fanshawe's African Sanctus with a choir of 700 singers in St John's, concerts and national CBC broadcasts at Unisong in Ottawa on Canada Day.

Currently, Dr. Dunsmore is a professor at Memorial University of Newfoundland School of Music (choral activities), choirmaster at Gower Street United Church, conductor of the NSO Philharmonic Choir, and artistic co-director of Newfoundland's Festival 500.
